Meet Senator Massey

Senator Massey is making a campaign which will place him in a position to know the needs of the people of Nevada when he is sent back to Washington to battle for their interests. He is meeting the people of the state personally, getting acquainted with them in a friendly way, hearing from their own lips the needs of Nevada. When Senator Massey meets a man who makes a friend. He is one of those affable, earnest, intelligent men who naturally attract, because the evidence of his ability is indelibly stamped in his manner.

If Senator Massey could meet every voter in the state, he would score a sweeping victory. Every voter who can possibly do so, should make the acquaintance of the senator. He should know him because he is the mouthpiece through which the voter gets action at Washington. He should meet him because the meeting will open the eyes of the person the real worth and intelligence and broadness of the senator. To meet Senator Massey personally is to vote for him. Make it a point to see the senator during his stay in Tonopah today.

Homeseekers Rates

A paragraph in yesterday's Bonanza is pregnant with greater importance to Nevada than the discovery of another Belmont. The announcement was to the effect that the semi-weekly homeseekers' rates from Missouri river points will continue another year in spite of the opposition of two of the most influential transcontinental lines. The Southern Pacific stood against the repeal or revision of the existing rate of $55 which had been grudgingly accorded the previous year to apply to all points in this state. The Espee has taken an aggressive stand for the rights of Nevada, which has been treated as the Cinderella of western states, and the result has exceeded the most sanguine expectation.

The opposition comes from railroads interested in the upbuilding of southern California and the same powerful influences which were exercised last year to prevent the granting of homeseekers' rates to Nevada were also employed this year to prevent a continuance.

Nevada is no longer treated as a necessary evil to bridge the railroads over the territory between Utah and California, but it is receiving a share of consideration that is adding substantially to the population. Humboldt and Elko counties are the chief beneficiaries up to date owing to their proximity to the railroads and the fact that a colonization movement has taken root there. Cheap farm lands are being taken up by thrifty and progressive colonists from the middle west who are seizing the opportunity to exchange worn-out hundred dollar lands in Kansas, Iowa and Missouri for the acquisition of $25 lands in Nevada. A precursor of the wave of prosperity that is sweeping onward through eastern Nevada is the condition of the banks in that district. The banks of Elko county have over $2,000,000 on deposit and the banks of Humboldt county have the same record. The ratio of deposits for Elko is $250 for every man, woman and child in that county, while Humboldt reports a per capita of $247.

In two years the population of eastern Nevada has increased 50 per cent and in the next three years it is estimated that the growth will be greater than the entire census period of 1900 to 1910, which noted a phenomenal growth of 93.4 per cent, the largest for any state in the union during the same period. Last year Nevada farmers harvested 1,018,000 bushels of wheat compared with 75,000 for 1910 and 380,000 for 1900, and a conservative estimate of the railroads is that 20,000,000 bushels will be raised in 1915 if not before. They are preparing to handle this enormous addition to the products of this state, and as this implies the expenditure of large sums for rolling stock the estimators are not likely to exceed the facts. This tells the story of the growing greatness of Nevada better than words.

AMUSEMENTS

Butler Theater

An excellent program of pictures will be shown at the Butler this evening, as follows: "Wiffles Mourns His Twin," a comedy; "The Mosquito," a scientific film; "The Divine Solution," a Lubin drama showing interesting scenes along the Mexican border; "A Moonshiners' Heart," an Essany thrilling western drama featuring G. M. Anderson, and a feature Vitagraph release entitled "The Barrier That Was Burned," by Rex Beach. A good, strong picture set in Alaska in winter time. The plot is simple, it is carried by only three characters. It is clearly drawn and has deep, convincing heart interest. As we say, the plot is simple, but the situation is complicated. Without losing its grip it interests differently, as it changes, gives forth a different color, like an opal, yet always remains the same stone. In it, Miss Edith Story gives us a homesick woman who loves her husband, a miner (Robert Gailford), but who rebels strongly against the eternal snow. The struggle of these two is imaginatively pictured, as is her contempt for the villain (Harry T. Morey), who wants her to elope with him, and also the general reaction of all three when the husband discovers the villain's note. The woman runs away, but not with the villain. The husband at first is suspicious, but learns the truth and follows in time to rescue her from the well-made snowdrifts.

RESCUE EULA

The sinking of the shaft on the Rescue Eula from the 800-foot level, its present bottom, to a depth of 1000 feet, was started several days ago with hand steel, which will be replaced by a machine in a few days upon the completion of the work of installing the new compressor plant. The new electric hoist is working in first class condition and before many days pass the shaft work will be making excellent headway. Work is soon to be resumed in the what is known as the new winze on the 800-foot level, which has a depth of about 25 feet and an average of about 3 feet of low-grade ore.

CASH BOY

The work of relieving timbers and otherwise repairing the 550-foot shaft on the Cash Boy, being operated under a three-years' lease by the Tonopah Mining & Leasing Co., has reached the 490-foot point. It is expected that the work will be completed by Monday, following which sinking will be resumed with a depth of 900 feet as the objective point. The officials of the leasing company are confident that the present development of the Cash Boy will result in the exposure in the property of the extension of the big vein of the Tonopah Merger, in which belief they are supported by mining men familiar with conditions.

HALIFAX

On the 1400-foot level of the Halifax, the ledge recently cut at a point about 122 feet north of the shaft, it being the same as was passed through by the shaft some time ago at a depth of around 1300 feet, has been penetrated to date a distance of 78 feet. Conditions present make it clear that the second or hanging wall will be encountered in a few days, following which drifting east and west will be inaugurated. Small values are being obtained from the ore from the crosscut.

H. R. Winn, representing one of the leading life insurance companies, arrived this morning from the coast and will spend several days in Tonopah conferring with local agents.
